Reproductive Health Training | Offered bi-monthly until April 2026

In the current climate, conversations around reproductive health are more complex and more important than ever. Unfortunately, this isn't something we often get to learn about in the classroom. That's why AMWA is offering a virtual training tomorrow as part of the Reproductive Health Coalition, a network working to protect access to reproductive care. This session will give you tips for having more empathic conversations around reproductive care. Whether you're a medical student, premedical student, or simply care about reproductive justice—this training will help you learn about patient-centered care!

Register here!

On demand training focuses on finding common ground, even when views on reproductive care differ. You can take this before or after the live session.
